

Doron Abrahami

Head of Economic and Trade Mission at Embassy of the State of Israel in Berlin

Embassy of the State of Israel in Berlin

Doron is an experienced civil servant with a demonstrated history of working in the government administration, skilled in government, entrepreneurship, strategic planning and foreign trade.

Doron took over the position of the Head of Economic and Trade Mission at the Embassy of the State of Israel in Berlin in August 2016. He is responsible for promoting trade and economic relations between the two countries and for fostering and building connections between the Israeli industry and the business community in Germany

Before being sent to Berlin, he held the position of the Director of the Environment and Sustainable Development Department in the Ministry of Economy and Industry in Israel.

The department coordinated the entire issue of the environment and energy at the Ministry and was established in 2010, with the aim of introducing environmental values into the Israeli industry and increasing the production and export capacity of products and services in the field of environmental technologies.

Prior to that, Doron was the Commercial Attaché and Consul for Economic Affairs in the Israeli diplomatic missions in Athens, Istanbul and Los Angeles respectively.

Doron is an Industrial and Management Engineer – graduate of Shankar College of Textiles and holds a Master in Public Policy from the Federmann School of Public Policy and Government at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem.